Thoracic Oncology Journal Accepting Case Reports

Journal of Lung Cancer Case Reports functions as a thoracic oncology journal accepting case reports that offer practical insights into real-world cancer care. Case reports in thoracic oncology are crucial for understanding rare tumor subtypes, complex clinical scenarios, and emerging treatment responses. The journal encourages submissions covering lung cancer, thoracic malignancies, metastatic disease, and multidisciplinary oncology management. Emphasis is placed on originality, clinical relevance, and ethical compliance, including informed patient consent. Through open-access publication and expert peer review, accepted thoracic oncology case reports reach a broad international audience, supporting education and research in cancer medicine. Clinicians and researchers are invited to submit their thoracic oncology case reports for timely and visible publication.
